The Program

This interdisciplinary minor provides students the opportunity to draw on classes from Ethnic Studies, Native American Studies and English to study the diverse literatures of multi-ethnic American writers. Students gain an understanding of the comparative histories and cultures of ethnic groups in the U.S. through Ethnic Studies 105, required of all minors. Minors take another twelve units in ethnic American literature and culture, including English/Ethnic Studies 336 (“American Ethnic Literature”). Courses might concentrate on the literary traditions of a particular group (including Native American, African American, Asian American and Chicano literatures) or examine multi-ethnic U.S. literatures in a comparative way. Various “Special Topics” courses also may apply, depending on the topic, and subject to Minor Advisor approval. Some units may double count in major and minor, but students must have 9 unique units in the minor. The Ethnic American Literatures minor can be particularly useful for those planning careers in teaching, social work, business, law, journalism, and community development.
